FOREWORD

This report presents information on the territorial-administrative divisions of the USSR down to the rayon level. Although the main purpose is to provide a current listing of Soviet administrative units and their centers, the report also provides in brief form the history of currently existing units from 1938 to the present. Changes that have taken place during this period are listed under the individual units affected.

The basic administrative structure of the USSR is presented as of June 1954 and is based on SSSR: Administrativno-Territorial'noye Deleniye Soyuznykh Respublik (USSR: Administrative-Territorial Divisions of Union Republics), 1954. Administrative handbooks for various years as far back as 1938 were used in compiling the historical material and area figures. Other sources were Soviet newspapers, periodicals, and radio broadcasts.

The order of arrangement is alphabetical by union republics, with subdivisions following the republics in alphabetical order. In the case of the RSFSR, all krays are listed first, then all oblasts, and lastly all ASSR's, each alphabetized within its group.

The information is presented in tabular form in the following order from left to right:

(1) Name of the administrative unit.

(2) Administrative center of the unit.

(3) Location of the administrative center in degrees and minutes of latitude and longitude. Symbols for degrees and minutes are omitted. For example, N 4503 E 04149 is to be interpreted as N 45°03', E 41°59'.

(4) Area of administrative unit in thousands of square kilometers. For example, 0024.6 is to be interpreted as 24,600 square kilometers.

(5) Date of establishment or known existence of the unit. The first two digits are omitted, so that 1938 appears as 38.

Remarks, where needed, are placed on the line below columns (3), (4), and (5). This entry includes data on transfers of subordination, creation of units, shifts of administrative centers, name changes, and other pertinent information.

Names in columns (1) and (2) are transliterated from the Russian, using the system approved by the U.S. Board on Geographic Names. Names of administrative units thus appear in the Russian adjectival form. In a few cases, where they are extremely long, the names of administrative units have been abbreviated from the proper Russian adjectival endings so that they could be included on IBM cards.* For instance, Ust'-Ordynskiy Buryat-Mongol'skiy Natsional'nyy Okrug has been entered as Ust'-Orda Buryat-Mongol' N.O. Abbreviations used for major administrative units are SSR (Soviet Socialist Republic), ASSR (Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic), Obl (Oblast), A.O. (Autonomous Oblast), and N.O. (National Okrug). In the rayon names listed under these larger units, the word "rayon" has been omitted.

Sources for the location of administrative centers included the Preliminary NIS Gazetteer of the U.S.S.R. and numerous Russian maps of various scales and publication dates. Although the coordinates given for these centers are as nearly accurate (to the nearest minute) as possible, they are to be used for general locational purposes only, since the small scale of some of the source maps precludes absolute accuracy. In a few cases involving recent center shifts, no coordinates are available.

Area figures were taken from the official administrative handbooks of the USSR, in which they are given in thousands of square kilometers. The figures for republics, oblasts, and other major divisions are for 1954; the figures for rayons are for 1947, the latest date for which rayon area figures are given in the administrative handbooks. All area figures are for purposes of comparison only. The area figures for rayons must be regarded as approximations, since the areas of these units may have changed considerably since 1947.

Column (5) gives dates of establishment for all larger units and dates of establishment or known existence for rayons. If the date 1938 is given for a rayon, it generally indicates that the rayon was created earlier and was known to be in existence at that date. The relatively few rayons that were actually established in 1938 can be identified by the explanatory remarks. All later dates are dates of establishment. Wherever possible the year of establishment is given; if the year is not known, inclusive dates are supplied. Thus, the date 41-47 indicates that the rayon was not in existence in 1941 but had been created by 1947.
